Jim Nantz

Featured Speaker

“Hello, friends” For 35 years, Jim Nantz has been family to millions of U.S. television viewers who have welcomed the legendary broadcaster into their homes for some of sports TV’s biggest events, including countless NFL and March Madness games, as well as major golf tournaments, most notably ~ The Masters. He started at CBS as studio host of the network’s college-football coverage in 1985. He moved to the booth to call play-by-play in 1989 before moving to the NFL scene in 1991. By ’93, he was on the No. 2 NFL crew before becoming host of The NFL Today. In 2004, he went out on the road as the network’s lead voice for The NFL on CBS, calling four Super Bowls. He became the first broadcaster in history to complete “The Triple,” calling the Super Bowl, the NCAA Men’s Basketball Championship, and the Masters — all within about 60 days. Truly one of the most exciting 60 days in sports!

Did you know? Jim Nantz is a winemaker! In 2009, Nantz partnered with wine producer Peter Deutsch to launch a private wine label The Calling with its first vintage released in 2012. The wine's name is in reference to Nantz's calling of the Masters Tournament.

The Volunteer Chapter proudly welcomes, Jim Nantz.
